EY Corporate Finance Woman of the Year

Participation in the EY Corporate Finance Woman of the Year competition will give you access to EY Transaction Advisory Services (TAS), connect you to our female leadership network and provide you with the chance to build your personal brand. We will show you how we help to build a better working world.

EY TAS guides clients through the entire transaction process, from target scouting through valuation and diligence reporting to execution of the transaction itself. Our client base consists of major corporates and industry leaders across a variety of sectors, as well as well-known international private equity houses. We are directly connected with their C-suites where key strategic decisions are made.

How can you participate?

Simply register online and submit your CV and a short essay:

Questions (choose one, 250 to 300 words):

- ▶ Which female leader in the public eye inspires you and why?
- ▶ Which sector do you think is going to exhibit significant M&A activity in 2020 and why?

Swiss competition (1 November 2019):

The top applicants will be invited to the Swiss competition at EY's Zurich office. Travel expenses will be covered for participants traveling to Zurich. Throughout the day, you will work on case studies to gain insight into our day-to-day work. You will be given the opportunity to express your strengths and motivation during the interviews.

The winner will represent EY Switzerland at the global final, and the top three candidates will be offered a paid internship in TAS at one of our EY's Swiss offices.

Global competition (February 2020):

The winner of the Swiss competition will enter a three-day global final with another 23 national champions in Rome. Transportation and accommodation expenses will be covered by EY.

Eligibility

The competition is targeted at undergraduate students upon their graduation and postgraduate students with interest in corporate finance and transactions.
